International conference Identity, Security and Inclusivity in border areas of South East Europe

10-11 of June 2026
Oradea

The University of Oradea, the EuroINCLUS Jean Monnet Center of Excellence, the Faculty of History, International Relations, Political Science and Communication Science and the Department of International Relations and European Studies, invites participants to the international conference entitled “Identity, Security and Inclusivity in border areas of South East Europe.”

The international conference will be centered on the tools and instruments used to boost inclusion and cooperation in the frame of the European integration process (with a focus on the East-Central European states and their experience as a model for the future integration processes).

The international conference will also seek to identify and analyze the process of societal inclusion and integration and the level of different forms of cooperation between regions, ethnic and confessional groups in contemporary societies. We propose to explore the origins and best practices of different type of cooperation's at different levels and its role in the European integration process and today's global environment.

The conference is organized by the EuroINCLUS Jean Monnet Center of Excellence, in the frame of the Jean Monnet Project: 101127601, EUROINCLUS
